Group Members:

Mehmet Karakus, Joseph Benet, Andrew Edmonds, Daneen Carroll and Arielle Magruder

Executive Summary and Scope:

Design, develop, deploy, and demonstrate a back-end office system for a local veterinarian, connecting customers to technicians who can provide additional pet services. Our system will securely create, retrieve, update, and delete appropriate records such as customers, technicians, pets and orders. We will validate business requirements, and will provide backup and recovery procedures.

Business Rules:

1. Dogs and cats exclusively, however, other animals can be added as needed.
2. North Carolina customers only, however, other locations added as needed.
3. Customers can have one to many pets, however, each pet has only one owner.
4. Customers will place one order at a time, yet, there can be many services per one order.
5. Orders include one and only one pet; and a pet can be on zero to many orders.
6. Must have five technicians, with at least one non-certified technician, non-certified technicians cannot administer medicine or bathe pets.
7. A technician is assigned to only one order, but an order can contain one to many services.
8. Teachers receive a 10% discount (must include 15 teaches).
9. College students will also receive a 10% discount on service (must include 10 students).
10. Customers can be technicians and technicians can be customers.
11. Customers can rate technicians.Each
12. Non-certified technicians are blocked from transactions, if services require certification.

View 1: with sub-query: WhoseHadOrders

Index: person table

Created with the following command:

```
CREATE INDEX person_index ON person (first_name, last_name, city, state, zip)
```

But shows in schema as this line in “CREATE TABLE person” statement:

```
KEY `person_index` (`first_name`,`last_name`,`city`,`state`,`zip`)
```

The person table is the root of customers, teachers, students, and technicians, and thus will be searched quite often. This index will speed up those searches. Likewise, this table will be JOINED often in order to get names, addresses, and contact info for customers, pets, e/mailling discounts to teachers, etc. Those JOINS will be more efficient because of person_index.

Trigger: DeletePerson attached to person table

```
DELIMITER ;;
/!50003 CREATE/ /!50017 DEFINER=`root`@`localhost`/ /*!50003 TRIGGER `DeletePerson`
BEFORE DELETE ON `person` FOR EACH ROW BEGIN
SET @custtype = 'P';

IF old.personID in (select personID from teachers) THEN SET @custtype = 'T'; end if;

IF old.personID in (select personID from students) THEN SET @custtype = 'S'; end if;

IF old.personID in (select personID from customers) THEN SET @custtype = 'C';
end if;

If old.personID in (select personID from technicians) THEN SET @wastech = 'Y'; ELSE
    SET @wastech = 'N'; END IF;

Insert INTO PERSONDEL (`personID`, `first_name`, `last_name`, `address`, `city`, `county`, `state`, `zip`, `phone`, `email`, `custType`, `wasTech`, `delTS`) VALUES (old.personID, old.first_name, old.last_name, old.address, old.city, old.county, old.state, old.zip, old.phone, old.email, @custtype, @wastech, NOW());

END */;;
DELIMITER ;

When a person is deleted, we want to store all of their common information in order to run reports in the future. Those reports will show entities that were deleted during user-provided date ranges, so personDel table includes a delTS, a timestamp column. Another benefit is quicker restore should a customer get deleted accidentally, or return to the practice in the future.

DeletePerson automates recording entity information when deleted, so the user does not have to include it in their procedures. This approach minimizes the risk of forgetting, or of mis-copying information from the current person table.

As coded, the trigger works fine. However, there are some concerns with the logic that should be addressed before deploying this database commercially. If the trigger runs "BEFORE DELETE ON `person`", there is the chance the actual DELETE fails, causing a data error in personDel. Either an invalid entry will exist if the DELETE is not attempted a second time, or multiple entries will exist as the DELETE is attempted over and over.

On the other hand, "AFTER DELETE ON `person`" is problematic because the schema is currently set up with foreign key constraints in customers, pets, technicians, teachers, and students that delete entries from those tables when an entry in person is deleted. i.e.

```
CONSTRAINT `fk_Customers_Person1` FOREIGN KEY (`personID`) REFERENCES `person`
(`personid`) ON DELETE CASCADE
```

So, logic such as "IF old.personID in (select personID from teachers) THEN SET @custtype = 'T';" does not work because the personID entry has already been deleted from all those tables. We will need to solidify our approach.

Stored Procedures

We've created two stored procedures for essentially the same function just to show our client the flexibility they have in creating reports. One returns a single value for the summed total of all services in a single order. The second procedure returns multiple pieces of information about a single order, including the same summed total of services. Either could be incorporated into an itemized receipt for the customer, or provide another summary view of orders for internal reporting.

Stored Procedure: Charges_per_order

This one shows three columns per order, including a listing of all services in a single field.

```
DELIMITER ;;
CREATE DEFINER=`root`@`localhost` PROCEDURE `Charges_per_order`(in orderid int)
BEGIN select orders.orderID, group_concat(services.serviceID) as Services,sum(services.cost) as Cost_Per_Order
from orders join services on orders.Services_serviceID = services.serviceID and orders.orderID = orderid group by orders.orderID asc;
END ;;
DELIMITER ;
```

Stored Procedure: totalOrder

Our second procedure returns a single value.

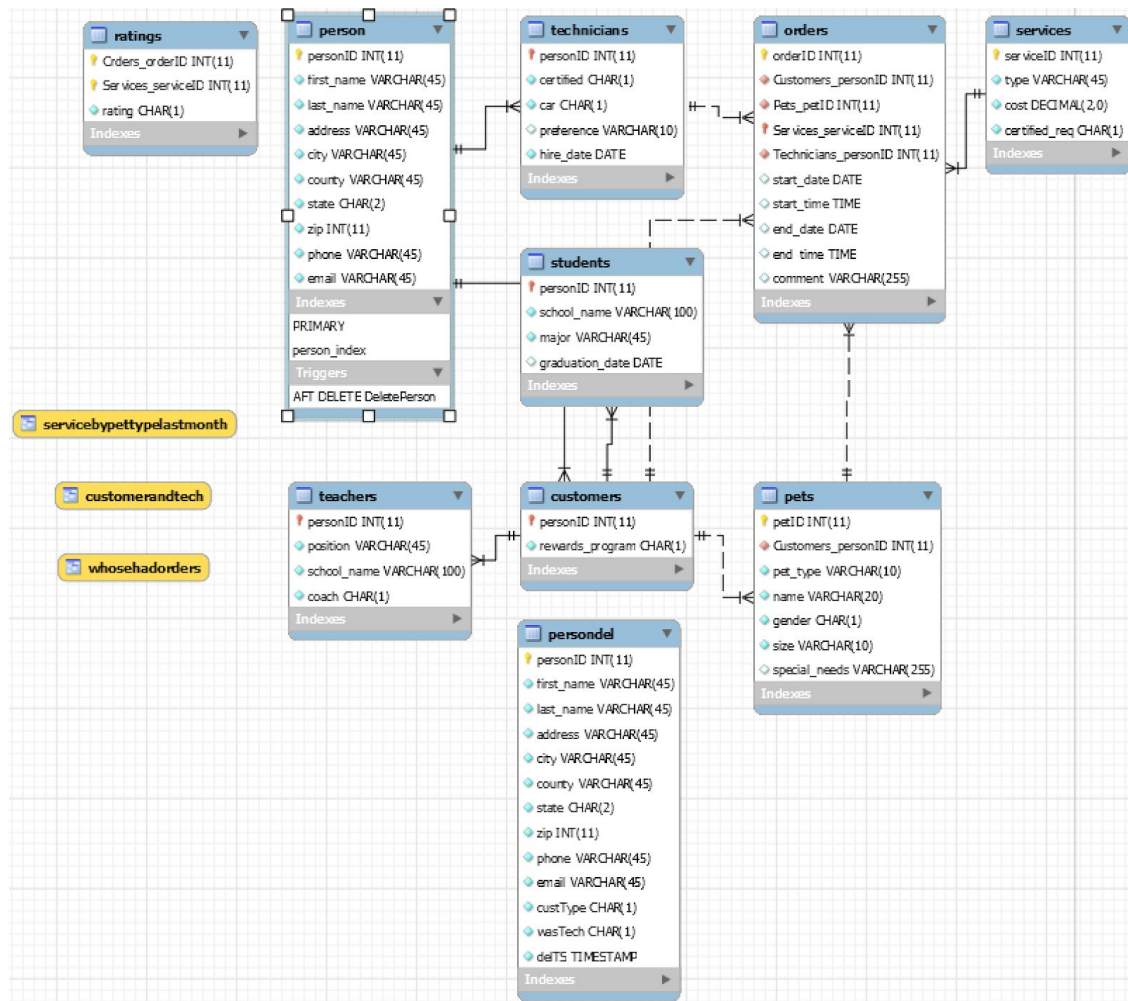

```
DELIMITER ;;
CREATE DEFINER=`root`@`localhost` PROCEDURE `totalOrder`(in orderNum int, out cost int)
BEGIN
select sum(services.cost) into cost from services,orders
where orders.orderID = orderNum and services.serviceID = orders.Services_serviceID group by orders.orderID;
END ;;
DELIMITER ;
```

Backup and Restore Criteria

Documentation for backing up and recovering the database:

1. Select the database to backup: Full database in addition to transaction log
2. Full Recovery Model will be used: A complete database restore. This will require offline downtime until all data in the database are consistent using a single restore sequence. This includes file restore, transaction restore and full database restore.
3. Select a backup destination (We will have 2 backup destinations: The Cloud and 5g on site hard drive).
4. Define shared access policy: Manage file sharing and accessibility within user roles.
5. Backup Schedule- Full database backed up monthly, transactions and orders backed up daily, customers and techs backed up weekly.
